EXECUTIVE SNAPSHOT

What the agents actually produced

Two autonomous agents ran end to end. The CSO planned and delegated a prospecting brief; the Lead Gen Agent researched public pages with Playwright and returned scored leads plus outreach drafts. The CMO did the same for content, returning a one-week calendar with hooks, captions and coordinator booking CTAs. Everything below is the real output, not a template.

Headline result

The Lead Gen Agent found three real Kosovo/Albania prospects in executive coaching and HR tech, led by XPR Consulting at a fit score of 92. Draft outreach for XPR references a specific line from their own executive development page, and is ready for a human to review and send.

The Content Planner answered a saturated “learn AI” feed with two market objections, producing three execution-ready posts targeting three inbound consultations in one week.

Execution metrics

PUBLIC PAGES REVIEWED	LOGINS USED	QUALIFIED LEADS	DRAFT SET READY

The Lead Gen Agent stayed strictly on open public sources. Search results pointing at LinkedIn profile pages were identified as login-walled and skipped without any attempt to authenticate, so all depth came from the prospects' own websites.

The specific website observation that unlocked the best lead

Found on XPR Consulting's executive development page

“the best technician became the supervisor, the most loyal person became the manager, and nobody was taught the job.”

This is the single most specific detail captured in research. It names the exact gap the HR + AI Academy addresses one layer below leadership, and it is the line the cold email opens on.

Draft 1 — Cold email to XPR Consulting

Field	Value
To	info@xpr-consulting.com
From (human sender)	Leonita Krasniqi, Creative Hub Kosovo
Subject	the manager who was never taught to manage
Language	English

Hi,

I read the opening of your executive development page, the part about the best technician becoming the supervisor and the most loyal person becoming the manager, and nobody ever being taught how to do either job. That is the same pattern we built our Human Resources + AI Academy around, just one layer earlier.

Creative Hub Kosovo runs practical, U.S.-certified academies in Prishtina.
The HR + AI program covers people operations, recruitment, and the AI tools now expected inside HR teams, with real projects rather than slideware. Your clients feel the gap at the leadership layer. Ours sits at the HR and people-ops layer feeding it.

Would a 20-minute call with Leonita, our HR academy coordinator, be useful to see whether a referral or co-delivery arrangement makes sense? No deck, just the two curriculums side by side.

Best,

Draft 2 — Follow-up, day 5

Field	Value
Send timing	Day 5 after the cold email if no reply
Language	English
Angle	HR + AI module list and two student project examples

Hi,

One more thought after your leadership academy page. The managers you develop inherit HR processes built by people who, in your own words, were never taught the job. That is usually where the AI expectations land first:
job descriptions, screening, performance notes.

If it helps, I can send the HR + AI module list and two student project examples. If the timing is wrong, no problem at all.

Best,

CSO strategic notes

- Pitch partnership, not competition. XPR and DIMENSION HR both sell training. Position Creative Hub as a referral or co-delivery partner, never as a rival offer.
- HR Bee is a small team (0–10 employees per its public STIKK listing). A team-enrollment pitch is weak. Lead with their jobseeker base and HR client base instead.
- Sender configuration required before sending. The drafts carry a [Name] placeholder; confirm the sending human and that the partnership framing is approved.
- General inboxes. All three are public general addresses. A human should verify a named contact on LinkedIn before the first send.
- No invented facts. The drafts contain no prices, dates, or enrollment claims beyond the public curriculum description. Add numbers only from the knowledge base if desired.

02 CMO & CONTENT PLANNER — 1-Week Strategy

Research & execution summary

18	0	3	3
PUBLIC SOURCES	LOGINS USED	POSTS SCHEDULED	TARGET BOOKINGS

- 18 public sources reviewed with zero-login Playwright research across tech education and career-transition content.
- Visual references saved to `inspo/2026-10-20-data-vibe-week.md` (committed `fca9724`).
- Every caption ends in a single coordinator booking CTA — Flaka for Vibe Coding, Leonita for Data Science & AI.

Core research insight

The feed is saturated — so do not add another “learn AI” post

The public feed is flooded with generic beginner tutorials. This strategy instead attacks the two objections that actually stop a purchase:
“Is a data career still worth it?” and “Everyone can vibe code now, so why train?”
Each post names the fear and answers it with proof — portfolio projects, a real screen recording, and a named coordinator to book.

Campaign strategic focus

Drive 3 qualified inbound consultations per week for the Data Science & AI and Vibe Coding academies. Three posts, one week, two channels (Instagram Reels in Albanian, LinkedIn in English).

HOOK

Data analyst roles aren’t dying. The job description changed, and most courses didn’t.

Funnel math & conversion rules

Stage	Volume	Assumption
Surfaces	6	3 posts × 2 channels of distribution
Reach	4,000 – 6,000	Combined organic reach for the week
Site / profile visits	60 – 90	≈1.5% click-through
Consultation bookings	3	≈5% booking intent

> Reply rule
>
> Reply once to every comment with the booking link, within 60 minutes of the comment. One reply, one link — never repeat the same link in a thread.

Execution watch-outs

- Vibe Coding starts March 2027. Do not imply imminent seats or a closing window.
- Student footage needs permission and anonymization before any project is shown on screen.
- Both reels need real screen recordings — a broken app being fixed, and a scroll through real dashboards. Stock footage is not a fallback.
- Test both Calendly links on mobile before publishing.

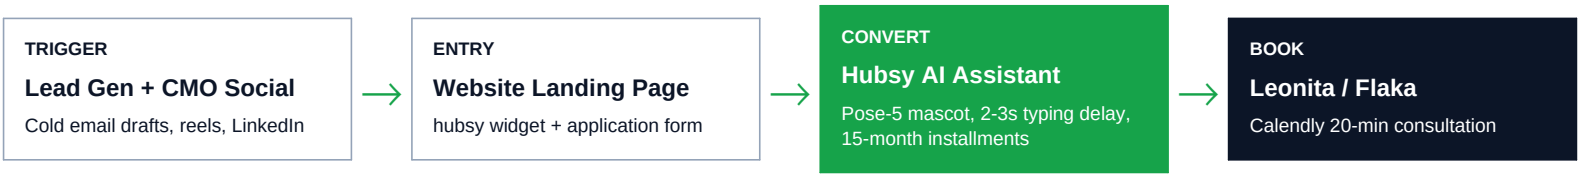
03 End-to-End Inbound Conversion Flow

Both agents feed a single path: cold outreach and social content create the trigger, the landing page captures the visitor, Hubsy qualifies them in Albanian or English, and a named coordinator closes with a booked call.



Stage	What happens	Owned by
Lead Gen / CMO Social	Scored prospects receive drafted outreach; reels and LinkedIn posts drive organic traffic to the same destination.	CSO + CMO agents
Website Landing Page	Visitor lands on creativehubkos.com, reads the program and opens the Hubsy widget or the application form.	Marketing site
Hubsy AI Assistant	Pose-5 mascot greets with a 2–3s typing delay, answers in one language only, explains the 15-month installments, and routes to the right coordinator.	Hubsy agent
Direct Booking	One-click Calendly booking with Leonita for Data Science & AI, or Flaka for Vibe Coding.	Human coordinators
